ALL ON BOARD WERE SAVED

PRIZE WAS TAKEN BY THE HORNET OFF ISLE OF PINES.

Started for Key West With Prize Crew of Three and Nine Prisoners-An Obstreperous Spanish Colonel With a Revolver.

KEY WEST, FLA., Aug. 12.-The twomasted Spanish schooner Salve Maria, of about thirty tons, was wrecked last night on the shoals of the western dry rocks, nine miles southwest of Key West. She is a total loss. The ten men on board of her were taken off fo-day by the government tug Accomac and brought here.

They are Boatswain's Mate McManus and eamen McKeown and Foley, of the gunboat Hornet, who were the prize crew se lected to bring her to this port, and seven Spanish prisoners, including Captain Palbanto, who owned the boat, her crew of four and two of the captain's friends who were designated as passengers.

The Salve Maria was captured by the Hornet off Francis key near the Isle of Pines last Saturday night. She was it ballast, carrying only the personal effects of the Spanjards aboard her. Captain Pallebanto, who is a native of the island of Majorca, explained that he had recently purchased the schooner, which was almost new, and, with his companions, had put out of Batabano to avoid starvation, intending to make for the first Central American port that offered food and shelter. ubjects of Spain

The Hornet took the schooner in tow until last Wednesday morning, when a stiff breeze came up and it was decided to send her in under her own sail. A prize crew consisting of McManus, McKeown and Fo ey were put on board and the Hornet left her and proceeded to Key West, arriving here the same night.

The schooner was then about eighty miles southwest of here. All went well until 11 o'clock last night, when the Salve Maria, under full sail, went bow upon the shoals without a moment's warning Several holes were stove in her hull, and she filled with water up to the deck line, The vessel and her company lay helpless all last night, but fortunately the wind and weather were favorable and, being well supplied with food, the men suffered no great hardship.

During the night, however, one of the Spanish passengers grew fractious and insisted that something be done to relieve the situation. To check any possibility of trouble, Seaman McKeown promptly thrust revolver into the Spanjard's face and warned him that if he did not keep quiet he would blow his head off. The threat proved effective, and the prisoner was thenceforth mute.

Early in the morning the pilotboat Glanee, under Captain Samuel Weltus, came upon the wrecked mariners and offered to bring them to Key West, but, in spite of the perils and discomforts of the situation, McManus answered that his orders were to take the ship in, and he would not leave her.

The pilot returned and reported to Commodore Remey, who sent the tug Acco-mac, Captain Angus, to the rescue. The but, after several futile efforts, it was decided that she was too far gone to warrant further trouble, and after her men had been transferred the waterlogged chooner was abandoned.

The Spaniards all carried revolvers and a goodly quantity of clothing, which was destroyed to avoid inspection. They were thankful for their rescue, and he who had been unruly was so eager to reach the tug that he dropped his umbrella over board and, in his efforts to save it, fell into the sea after it. He was fished out unhurt. Upon reaching here the prisoners were pat aboard the Hornet, pending further instructions for their disposition. Me-Manus declares that the shoals upon which the schooner grounded were not indicated on the chart furnished him and which was his sole guide in navigating the boat. They are, however, marked by a beacon.

a token of respect to the dead admiral. Rear Admiral Kirkland was assigned to Mare island on June 1, 1896, and held the post to the time of his death. He was one of the oldest officers in the navy. He was appointed to the naval academy in 1850 rom North Carolina, his native state. In 1853 and 1854 he served on the frigate St Lawrence. He saw some fighting during the civil war, but he was not raised to the rank of captain until 1880. In 1893 he was made a commodore and was commissioned rear admiral in 1894. Admiral Kirkland served under Acting Rear Admiral Thatcher in the combined movements of the military and naval forces against the defenses of Mobile. He thus helped in the conques of Mobile and the surrender of the rebel leet. In 1864-65 he was given command of the gunboat Owasco and then of the Winnebago in the West Gulf blockading squadron. He owned a beautiful home in San Diego, Cal., where he hoped to settle permanently as soon as he should be retired.

A conference with the Hawaiian govern ment will be held this afternoon. It is generally understood that the flag will not be raised until the commissioners arrive, on the 17th instant. F. M. Hatch has resigned his position is minister to the United States.

A NEW DAY RUMOR.

It Is Said That He Is to Be Appointed to the Federal Bench Shortly.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., Aug. 12 .- Sec retary Day will be appointed United States judge for the Sixth circuit as soon as he resigns from the cabinet at the close of the war. This was learned from the most reliable authority here to-day.

It is learned that several months ago Judge Taft, of Ohio, the associate judge of the Sixth circuit, went to President Mc-Kinley and made a personal request that another judge for the circuit should be ppointed.

His reason for this was that the circuit embraces four important states-Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky and Tennessee-and that only two judges are allowed, whereas other circuits not so large are given four or more. The work of the circuit, he showed, required an additional judge. The result of the conference was that the president very frankly and unreservedly stated that he intended to appoint Judge Day to the place at the close of the war.

MERE BOYS DID

LEADER OF THE BURLINGTON ROB-BERS A LAD OF 17.

DONE SIMPLY FOR EXPERIENCE

NONE OF THE DESPERATE GANG WAS OVER 19 YEARS OLD.

All Are Under Arrest-Leader Was a Western Union Messenger Boy-He Dropped a Pocket Dictionary With His Name in It.

ST. JOSEPH, MO., Aug. 12 .- (Special.) A Burlington railway detective to-night sent a message to his superior in Chicago announcing the capture, without the loss of a man, of the whole desperate gang of train robbers who held up the Exposition flyer, two miles north of this city last night. He omitted a very important feature: That is that every desperado concerned in the daring job is a more lad-most of them Sunday school boys at that.

The police, express and railway officials have been rounding up tramps and suspicious characters ever since the holdun occurred, and compelling a recitation of their whereabouts at the time of the robbery. The only clue the officers had to work upon was a pocket dictionary and two red bandana handkerchiefs that had been picked up at the scene of the crime. evidently having been lost by one of the gang. Written on the inside of the cover of the dictionary was the name, "James Hathaway, Twenty-first and Felix streets." Detectives called at the above number early this morning to find the only person bearing that name was a boy of 17, a messenger in the employ of the Western Union. He admitted the dictionary was his but said it had either been lost or stolen. The sleuths went away and James went back to bed. Later he arose, and went to work, carrying messages.

He was invited into the counsels of the officers later on. The startling information was soon vouchsafed by him that further pursuit on the trail of red handed bandits was useless, as he, Jim Hathaway, age 17, with a horse pistol in each hand and a knife in his belt, had led the desperadoes into the plot and safely out again. The fact that none of his "men" had been "lost" was a source of great pride to Hathaway, for he cited the case of a man experienced in outlawry who had played the same kind of a king at the identical spot a few years ago and two days later rested in the potter's field at Mount Maria.

Hathaway readily gave the names of his gang. His trusty lieutenant was his brother. Bill Hathaway, age 16. The others are: Charles Cook, age 17, son of a member of the fire department; Alonzo Otterburn, age 19, son of a contractor, and Herbert Doniphan, age 18. All are locked up at police headquarters. It is doubtful if they will be severely prosecuted.

James Hathaway says he conceived the plot several days ago, after reading one of the thrilling stories of "Old Cap Collier." The gang was not bent on getting money o much as experience for use in future That is the reason they did not take the express safe away, so Hathaway says.

The safe was recovered near the scene of the hold-up. It had not been opened.

COLORADO HOTEL HOLDUP. Robbers Pursued by a Posse and Desperate and Bloody Fight

Occurs. BRECKENRIDGE, COL., Aug. 12.-A well planned holdup took place here in the Denver hotel, but, owing to the alarm caused by the accidental discharge of a shotgun held by one of the three robbers. their movements were so hurried that they did not go through the safe or cash register, and only secured about $50 in money from a till, several gold watches and other jewelry.

This afternoon Sheriff Dewiler and a posse encountered the robbers near Koko-mo and a running fight took place. One wounded and Charles Riley was captured. Ex-Deputy Sheriff M. E. Conrad, one of the posse, was killed in the fight, and Sumner Whitney, another member, was seriously wounded. Conrad formerly resided in Pennsylvania, where his parents ar now.

Reports received here at midnight are to the effect that small bodies of armed men are coming in to Kokomo from the neighboring camps for the purpose of lynching Manley, should his wounds not prove fatal. The sheriff has succededed in keeping the mob from the prisoner by allowing a committee of their number to enter the jail for the purpose of satisfying themselves that the injured man was in danger of dying.

It is said that Manley is sinking fast and cannot live throughout the night, and this alone can prevent his being lynched.

Charles Riley, it appears, had no connection with the robbery, but was with the holdups when the posse overtook them.

There is no talk at present of lynching

A deadlock has been caused by the undertaking of the Hungarian cabinet not to renew the agreement under article 14 of the Austrian constitution, and the impossibility for the Austrian ministry, in the present condition of the reichsrath, to make any other arrangement.

The patriotic concert by Lenge's Military band at Troost park last night was a big success and attracted a large crowd. The illumination of the grounds was particularly fine. The hit of the evening, outside of the cornet playing of Miss Biggs and the singing of George Olmi, was Lenge's own march, the "Battle of Manila." It is a fine plece of music and stirred the entusiasm of the audience up to a high pitch. It is not unlikely that every Friday night at Troost may be made a special patriotic night.

The conductor was absent-minded and forgot to turn on the lights as the car entered the tunnel. About midway he suddenly awoke and turned the switch which made the car immediately as light which made the car immediately as light as the glare of a government searchlight At least it seemed that bright to a young couple in the car who had their lips glued together in a blissful kiss as the light blazed forth. They were so startled that they couldn't get apart until the "smack" had been completed and the attention of every passenger had been directed to them. Everybody shouted, including the couple, who seemed unable to think of anything else to do. The young man was said to be the son of a well known United States deputy marshal and the young lady—but what's the difference who the young lady was.

ANGER IS GROWING

ENGLAND INDIGNANT OVER THE RE-BUFF IN CHINA.

AN ALLEGED SECRET TREATY

IT IS SAID THERE IS A RUSSIAN-CHINESE ALLIANCE.

Shanghat Correspondent Says It Has Been a Fact Since Li Hung Chang Visited the Cany-French Press Is Jubilant.

LONDON, Aug. 13.-The morning papers express the growing indignation of the country at the position of affairs in China. The Daily Graphic says: "If this state of things continues, the guns will go off of themselves." The Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Mail, who professer livulge the terms of a long existing China and Russia, says: "It is nothing less than an offensive alliance. China undertakes to regard Russia as having a preponderating influence on all questions of commercial and internal policies, while Russia will support China against all 'open door' demands. Russia finances China in internal developments and China grants to Russia preferential

"Russia will assist China in developing her military and naval forces and China will co-operate with Russia as an ally. This treaty has been in abevance since Li Hung Chang visited the czar. That it has ecome operative at the present mo rates in certain areas, and railways built

Chwang contracts is significant." If the Daily Mail's version may be trusted, it will explain much that had hitherto been inexplicable in the development of the question. The manager of the Hong Kong and Shanghai bank in London, in the course of an interview yesterday, said: "I believe the Pekin-Hankow line, owing to natural obstructions and its costliness, cill never be built, Russia merely wishing to keep England out." The French press comments gleefully upon the situation and the newspapers at erlin and Vienna are at no pains to hide their satisfaction at the discomfiture of England. The Continental press regards the project of an Anglo-American alliance as chimerical. These journals consider as chimerical. These journals consider that the United States has had enough of war for the present and will not care to give Great Britain anything more than moral support in China. Therefore, they argue. England is not likely to pick a quarrel with Russia, but will content herself with seeking compensation elsewhere. A special dispatch from Shanghal says: "The Russian agents are again intriguing to obtain control of the Chinese maritime customs department."

The Pekin correspondent of the Times, The Pekin correspondent of the Times, telegraphing with reference to the Pekin-Hankow contract, says: "The rebuff is all the more serious because the tsung il yamen gave assurances that the decree confirming the contract would not be issued until after a further conference with Sir Claude MacDonald, the British minister."

The Daily Chronicle, in an editorial which reflects the general opinion of the London morning press, comments upon the fact that the Marquis of Salisbury and all the responsible officials are leaving London at such a critical moment.

It says: "The curtain is deliberately dropped upon a scene of national humiliation and national indignation."

WAR IN MIDST OF PEACE.

Band of Black Insurgents Who Refused to Abide by the Terms of the Protocol.

The seat of war was transferred to Justice Krueger's courtroom yesterday for a few minutes. A band of black insurgents, consisting of the friends and relatives of three young lead pipe thieves, became so three young lead pipe thieves, became so incensed at a fourth member of the party of pipe purioiners that it required the combined efforts of the police, constables and attorneys to quell the uprising. Will Brinkley, Lee Jordan, Charles Roberts and a boy named English, all negroes, had been arrested several weeks ago charged with stealing lead pipe. The detectives finally persuaded the English boy to confess, on the understanding that he was not to be prosecuted. None of the others knew this, and when the boy went on the stand yesterday and turned state's evidence the storm broke.

terday and turned state's evidence the storm broke.
"You low down leather cullud nigger." hissed a weazened old black woman, "ef I ever gits my hans on you I'll show you how to lie lak that an' sen' my Willie to de jail house"—but that was only a breath in the whirlwind. All the printable and unprintable invectives that negroes know how to invent and adapt were hurled at the head of the frightened boy in the witness chair until the prosecuting attorney feared he would be scared speechless before he could complete the examination.

When the air cleared a little the judge sentenced Will Brinkley and Lee Jordan to ten days in jail, each, and Charles Roberts, who was an old offender, to ninety days.
